About the initiative

The growing demand for security from citizens calls for a reflection on how to deal with this emergency. Beyond the real risk of being the victim of predatory crimes (aggression, theft or other violent acts), what makes the city unsafe is the perception of insecurity felt in certain areas and mainly related to urban decay and social distress. Among the multiplicity of factors that contribute to influencing and altering the perception of spaces, the physical elements of the urban environment, connected to the way in which cities and spaces are planned, designed, built and managed, are decisive. It is therefore clear that the objective of making the city safer cannot be pursued exclusively through control or repressive actions, but requires an integrated approach in which socio-economic actions are accompanied by interventions on the built environment, of a physical, functional and managerial nature.

The aim of the cultural initiative is to discuss the possible contribution that town planning can make to the safety of cities and the need to make more careful and informed planning choices, taking this aspect into account as well as other needs.
